Following the success of March's preview show, Art Love New York is pleased to announce the second edition of its annual global art exhibitions series, taking place this time in lower Manhattan on May 13-17, 2015.

ALNY is a contemporary art platform/fair showcasing artists & galleries from around the globe twice a year in pop up venues, big & small.

This May, Art Love New York will be showcasing a selection of artists from various nationalities and artistic backgrounds, presenting eclectic works utilizing diverse technical styles, including:

- Pola Brandle, Germany's contemporary decollage artist
- Indra Setrawan, Indonesian's pop revolutionary painter
- Audrée Anid, American/Lebanese artist specializing in mixed-media photography;
- Pham Huy Thong, Vietnam's renowned political satire painter
- Marwan Nahle, Broad based artist presenting his latest experimental video works
- Sebastian de Lancey, Trinidadian mixed-media structural painter
- Chicago-based artist "Chicagokim," who specializes in constructionist sculptures,
- George Lilanga, Ghana's late & beloved, whimsical artist.
- Oussamah Ghandour, abstract Lebanese painter based in Brooklyn
- Christopher Carr, Brooklyn-based indie photographer and artist

This event will take place on May 13th, 2015, at S Art Space on 345 Broome Street, Manhattan, from 6:00pm until 9:00pm. The exhibit is open everyday until May 17th, from 11 am until 9 pm.
